

Hope

Jun Togo

There is a prisoner in a cell, who has been judged as guilty on his murder and waiting for the execution.

Did he regret his action?

The bereaved family and the citizen of the society are eagerly hoping that the man faces to what he has done, regrets and apologize it.

However, he shuts himself in his imaginary world.

He lives in his delusions, for example, he is surrounded by the beauties or he is winning in the Olympics.

Why is he shutting himself out in his fantasy world?

It is because that the reality is too painful for him. All he has in the real world is the iron bars, the hatred from the bereaved family and the countdown to his death penalty.

Come out

If he threw away his imaginary world and returned to the reality, there would be no warmth, love, light or hope.

Dear you;

Do you kill a person who is confined in his/her imaginary world?

Dear you;

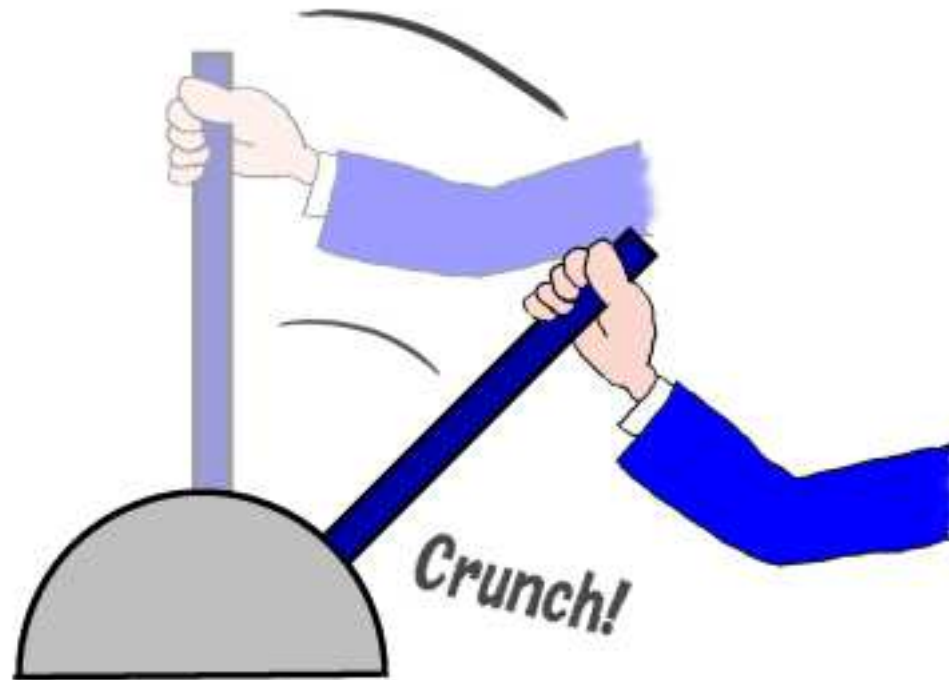

Don't you want the murderer to seriously face his/her act of killing? Don't you want the murderer to sincerely regret and apologize? Don't you want to utilize his/her reflects for the prevention of the next possible crimes?

If you want him to face to what he has done, don't you think that it is necessary to bring him back from his imaginary world to the real world in the first place?

Do you think that further despair brings the people back to the real world who have escaped into their imaginary world?

Don't you think that it is a piece of hope in the real world, which will brings these people back to the real world?

Justice was served!

Fortunately the devil was executed!

As you can imagine anything...
